Interrogating Freud and Lacan

The purpose of this working group is to interrogate Freudian and Lacanian texts to discover the building blocks which describe relationships in progress. In particular, the way in which diagrams are used to show how relationships and relations between symbols operate. Jacques Lacan also puts topology and mathemes in place.

The working group's process will emphasise participation. There are two ways to contribute:

- by engaging in discussions, from your subjective position and
- by commenting on texts of your choice or from the reading list we will be providing. To enable everyone to take part, it is requested that these commentaries be short.

A pre-reading of the texts being examined is therefore advised.

Every effort will be made to circulate a reading list in early July 2014. Bruno de Florence & Julia Evans will direct the process, but they may not necessarily present. It is hoped that this working process will lead to a body of knowledge which may be published.

Pre-registration is essential. Register your interest in becoming a member of this body, giving us your reasons for joining us, by emailing both Julia and Bruno (contact details to the left).
